

Here's a way to guarantee far happier trails.

ADCO's remarkable AT-3 helps make horse trailers better, and that means happier customers, happier distributors, and happier horses.

AT-3 is a very high bond acrylic tape used to mount trailer side and top panels to frame members. Using AT-3 makes trailers stronger, quieter, and is safer than screws, rivets, welds or foam-core tapes.

Stronger because it securely bonds the panel substrate to the frame; quieter because it drastically reduces vibration noise; and safer because of its very high panel shear strength.

And that's not all.

AT-3 comes in any width and thickness needed, and because of its high-tack, pressure-sensitive, permanent adhesive, the trailer production process becomes simpler, faster, and more error-free.

Created to be absolutely the best method of fastening system available, AT-3 is so effective that it meets General Motors' highest performance rating for exterior body mounting.
